

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Wednesday 16 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:

Thunderstorms developing over parts of England Wednesday night.

Today:

Fine for many, with some hot sunshine for much of England and Wales before evening thunderstorms develop for some. Further north, a few showers over Scotland and Northern Ireland.

Tonight:

Thunderstorms moving northwards across parts of England and Wales with heavy rain and lightning, these mainly across southern and central areas. Scotland and Northern Ireland clearer with a few showers.

Thursday:

Band of cloud and light rain across central and western areas. Risk of thunderstorms southeast of this. Mainly dry with sunny spells across much of Scotland and Northern Ireland.

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:

Mostly dry with sunny spells, although heavy, perhaps thundery, rain will affect much of England and parts of Wales on Friday. Rain and showers becoming more widespread again on Sunday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.